Update on TRV Master Plan Projects

A.

JD Granger (Executive Director, TRVA) gave the Board a brief update on the progress of the Project Management Support effort. APSI has completed loading the schedule software with current updates. Upcoming tasks include cost estimating and cash flow analysis. Next, Mr. Granger announced the status of the United States Army Corps of Engineers (USACE) work effort at the Samuels Avenue construction site. Over 400,000 cubic yards of dirt has been moved south of the river. The contractor is now beginning work on the north side, which will eventually include a large boat turnaround area. The Metroplex Ski Club has been an avid user of the river and the turnaround will be a new amenity for all boat enthusiasts. The improvements associated with the Northside Trailhead and Cowtown Wakepark will be under construction this winter and the wakepark is set to open in spring 2011. Mr. Granger next gave the board an update on the Riverside Park Master Plan. The City of Fort Worth City Council will be taking up this issue at City Council next week. The TRVA is asking the City for direction on what recreational amenities they would like incorporated into the flood storage plan for the park. Amenities like ecosystem restoration, soccer fields, water feature, trail improvements and a picnic improvement are within the project budget to fund. A long term master plan will direct additional community-requested amenities that would be funded and implemented in the future.

Additionally, Mr. Rauscher informed the board that staff continues to work on finalizing utility relocation agreements with all of the franchise utility partners, including Atmos Energy, Oncor Electric, and AT&T.
